NEW SOLAR POWERED RED DOT SCOPE FROM TASCOS® ELIMINATES WORRY ABOUT BATTERIES

Overland Park, KS — Tasco introduces solar cell technology to its line of red dot riflescopes with the new Solar Cell Red Dot scope. The Tasco Red Dot scopes have always been favorites of deer and turkey hunters, and now they will not have to worry about keeping fresh batteries on hand during the hunting season.

The Solar Cell Red Dot scope is available in a 1x30mm.

For use during low light early morning or late afternoon hours, it can be switched from solar power to a back up battery. Standard features include fully coated lenses, an illuminated 5 M.O.A. red dot reticle and unlimited eye relief. It also has the Tasco Rubicon lens coating for brighter images. A rheostat lets the user dial in the brightness of the red dot to match hunting or shooting conditions.

All Tasco red dot sights are built to last with rugged construction and will withstand the recoil of 3" magnum shot shells and handgun loads up to .357 magnum. The new Solar Cell Red Dot scope will be available in 2006 at Tasco dealers nationwide.
